ANNOUNCEMENTS

CPSC Issues New Drowning Report
This summer, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) released its annual drowning report, detailing fatal and non-fatal drowning injuries for children under the age of 15. Reviewing this year’s report, child drownings continue to be the leading cause of death among children ages 1 to 4 years old. This age group makes up 76 percent of nonfatal drowning injuries. Its findings also reflect our current understanding of racial disparities in drowning fatalities. Despite making up only 15% of the population for that age, Black/African American victims represent 21% of drowning deaths involving children under 15. Knowing this, it’s important that we improve access to water safety education for all communities, especially those that have historically been excluded. Equitable access to swim lessons and public pools would reduce the risk of drowning for every child.

CPSC Warns Consumers About Two Baby Product
This month, the CPSC warned consumers to immediately stop using the Girasol Wrap Your Baby Sling Carriers and CCATTO Baby Tents. The sling carriers do not comply with the federal standard for structural integrity and occupant retention, posing a fall hazard to infants. The baby tents do not comply with mandatory federal safety standards for infant sleep products, posing a fall hazard and risk of suffocation to infants.

AAP Warns Consumers About Weighted Sleep Sacks
The American Academy of Pediatrics is warning that weighted swaddles and sleep sacks, marketed as mimicking a parent’s hand resting on their child or the sensation of being held, pose potentially fatal risk to infants. In a letter to the CPSC, they express concern about the potential for these products to increase the risk of sudden infant death syndrome by compressing their chests and affecting their breathing.
